

THE WORK OF THE WEEK

SYNBY OUTRUNS TANYA.

WINS RICH REALIZATION.

James R. Keene's Great Colt Earns New and Lasting Honors.

Synby, James R. Keene's great Melton colt, treated Tanya, Migraine and Blandly with the same contempt that he showed for Proper, Tradition and others on Saturday. In the seventh running of the Lawrence Realization, at Sheephead Bay yesterday. That he is a great colt none can deny. He has done all that has been asked of him in such a convincing and withal brilliant way that it is little wonder he is hailed on all sides as a turf hero. It appeared yesterday as if he were never really extended at any part of the race. He went along with that even, frictionless stride that seemed more pleasure than work, and after he had killed off all opposition he came on with his ears pricked and won pulled up to a canter.

A monster crowd went down to Sheephead Bay to see Synby perform, and incidentally to enjoy a day's outing under conditions that could hardly have been improved upon. It was warm in town, but a cool breeze off the ocean tempered the sun's rays at the track and made for the comfort of those who were gathered in the clubhouse or big grandstand or spread out over the lawns. It was a holiday crowd that was rarely, if ever, been equalled at Sheephead Bay. The attendance was conservatively estimated at 30,000 persons. It was crowded in the roomy main enclosure. It was packed almost to overflowing in the so-called free field. That the crowd enjoyed the outing and the racing there could be no doubt.

It was the last day of the Coney Island Jockey Club's spring meeting, and a good card had been provided, with the rich Realization as the feature and the Independence Steeplechase and the second half of the Double Event as curtain raisers. The Realization has ever been a race valued by owners and trainers, not alone for its value, but for the prestige which goes to the winner. It is a race exclusively for three-year-olds, and for only the greatest and best. To earn a place in the winning roster is an honor in itself, as it includes such stars of the thoroughbred world as Ori Weiss, Africander, the Parader, Prince of Melbourne, Ethelbert, Hamburg, The Friar, Requital, Dobbins, Tournament and Salvador.

James R. Keene had never won the prize, although he had repeatedly tried. When Commodo was a three-year-old the race appeared to be at his mercy, but he was forced to strike his colors. Yesterday the "white blue spots" was always in front, and the pleasure of winning perhaps was the greater for its being long delayed. Four horses faced the starter half way up the Futurity chute—Synby, the odds-on favorite at 2 to 5; Tanya, the winner of the Belmont Stakes this spring; Blandly, which won the Withers and has over been accounted a game and honest fellow, and Migraine, which was not seriously considered. Tanya looked the perfect type of a thoroughbred race mare, and shaped up quite as well as Synby. In the running, however, she suffered materially in comparison. Synby took the track in the first few strides, and the story of the race is the story of his triumphal march to certain victory. A good exercise gallop would have furnished quite as much excitement for competition, as far as Synby was concerned there was none. Blandly and Migraine had a short but decisive struggle on the far turn for the small end of the stake, where Blandly decided that last was his position. Tanya, giving of her best with true courage, came within a whisker of the victory, but Synby, on the backstretch, a cry went up from the grandstand, when for a short furling Tanya moved up to the flying pace-maker, and to all appearances was going quite as strong. The thrill of those who had looked the city over only momentarily, however, as when Nicol let out a link Synby easily drew away again and the race was over. At the head of the stretch Tanya and Tanya reached him was beaten and took one look behind to see if danger threatened from that quarter, but none there was, and Tanya was practically eased up in second place.

The second half of the Double Event of $10,000, first and second place, finished, in which the Ironsides, McKittredge and Timber were heads apart at the mile. Ironsides had the advantage of his J. Martin's best rides, and this helped largely in his victory over the half-brother to McKittredge. It was a true run race, and at the weights Ironsides was probably best. Samson and Vendor, the early pacemakers, found their task too much, and when they retired Ironsides, McKittredge and Timber took issue with each other and fought out a desperate fight all through the last sixteenth. For a moment, too, George C. Bennett looked dangerous, but Nicol was of little help in the drive that was necessary to get him up.

The steeplechase was free from fall or accident. Judge Fulton, the clown of the field, furnished some amusement by his antics in getting over the jumps, while the others furnished the competition. Castellan was a wild horse, and tried his best to run away during the early stages of the race. He fenced faultlessly and won ridden out at the end of the last favorite, McKittredge. The latter struck two or three of his jumps, and the one on the far turn the last time so hard that it took all the run out of him.

The other winners were Incantation, Ocean Tide and Butting. Three favorites won.

PADDOCK PARAGRAPHS.

Miller, the jockey, had a narrow escape from serious injury, if not death, in the last race at Sheephead Bay yesterday. In the crowd for position on the first turn Wotan fell and Miller went down under the feet of the flying field. As a miracle he was not trampled on, and when the horses passed on he jumped up and waved his hand to the grandstand as if to assure everybody that he was unhurt. He is a game little fellow, and walked off the track without assistance, even though he was bruised and badly shaken up.

J. Martin earned the jockey honors with two victories to his credit. He rode Incantation and Ironsides, and gave clever exhibitions on both.

Synby ran the mile and five furlongs in the Realization in 2:47, the record for the course being 2:45. It looked as if he might have made a new mark for the distance if he had been forced to do his best in the last half mile.

Hens, which in his day was one of the great horses of the turf, was so stiff and sore yesterday in the selling race for which he was carded, that it seemed a pity to start him. He finished a last.

Synby and Race King ran a dead heat in the Metropolitan Handicap this spring. Yesterday Synby raced to impressive victory in one of the richest stakes of the year, while Race King was soundly beaten in a handicap by horses two years older, of which have been running unplaced in selling races.
